Through the Seats Lab and Ticket Access Program, we help residents enjoy arts and culture and create holiday experiences and memories for families.”

About Seats Lab

As part of ArtsEmerson’s commitment to be additive to the cultural landscape of Boston, a significant investment is made each year in building new audiences for Boston cultural offerings and expanding access to the performing arts for Boston residents. To support the effort to expand audiences, ArtsEmerson has created the Seats Lab, a research program that studies barriers to participation, and strategies for dissolving those barriers, among communities not currently fully represented in the region’s audience.

Working in partnership with different neighborhoods and demographics, ArtsEmerson dedicates 20% of its seats each year to test and develop approaches to wider engagement with the artists on Boston stages. To support the effort to expand access, ArtsEmerson donates another 10% of its seats to community organizations in the city serving economically disadvantaged populations for whom a night at the theater is otherwise beyond reach. Our Ticket Access Program reaches high schools, senior centers, and other community organizations with free tickets to the world on stage. Organizations may apply for TAP by clicking here and filling in the online application form. When tickets are available, selected organizations will be contacted to coordinate ticket purchasing and/or distribution.
